ENFORCEMENT ORDER A NULLITY

2 December 2011

Dear Lorraine,

Thank you for your response to my various queries. I have one further item in respect of the Council's mistaken decision to dig up Beauty Drive (aka Oak Drive) which is the access road for plots 45,50 and 51, where there is no enforcement notice against residence in caravans (that is one point on which we agree).

I refer to this as mistaken as clearly the access road has existed for decades and was used by the Council itself for the movement of abandoned and wrecked vehicles from Basildon streets (as shown in aerial photographs); moreover this road is essential to the families who have a right to continue to live there, for their use and the use of service and emergency vehicles.

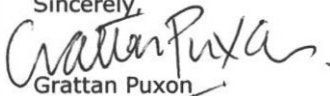

The Enforcement Notice upon which you rely for the legal power to dig up this section of road at Beauty Drive is in reality null and void, as it was not signed by the Head of Planning. If you have a different view and wish to argue otherwise, please send me the authorisation for the issue of the enforcement notice duly signed by the persons which the Constitution of the Council legally require.

If such exists I request under Freedom of Information that you furnish a copy and send to:

1 John Harper Street
Colchester C01 1RP

I shall not be content to be informed that the enforcement notice in question has been "approved" by the courts. No proof of validity has yet been produced.

Sincerely,

Grattan Puxon
